Why GRADUATE STUDIES in HISTORY?

Consider a graduate degree in History for all it has to offer: well-developed skills in critical reading, writing, and research and, perhaps even more importantly, engagement with oneself and the world we all inhabit.

Graduate students and their work are an important part of an ongoing research process that provides the community with ways of understanding natural, cultural, imaginative, social and technological phenomena.

Today’s employment marketplace seeks people who are critically informed, culturally literate, capable of synthesizing information and adept at creating and managing knowledge-based projects. Study History and you will acquire such skills.

Why QUEEN’S?

The Department of History at Queen’s offers a challenging and innovative graduate program, in established and new fields of historical inquiry.

Our students are taught primarily in small all-graduate seminars, in which they engage in a lively, critical examination of historical writing, and delve into their own research. We are a mid-sized university and department, and are therefore able to create for our students a rich, supportive learning community. Our Graduate History Students’ Association fosters a vibrant community through a variety of social events and professional development workshops.

Students participate in the departmental seminar series and host the biannual McGill-Queen’s Graduate History conference that draws students from across Canada and the US.

Program STRUCTURE

We offer two MA program patterns. Pattern I (12-20 months) requires students to complete 4 one-term (or equivalent) seminar courses, an Introduction to Historical Research course, and to write a thesis of about 100 pages. Pattern II (12 months) requires students to complete 4 one-term (or equivalent) seminar courses, an Introduction to Historical Research course, and to write a short thesis or cognate essay of about 50 pages.

RESEARCH Areas

Besides its traditional strengths in Canadian and European history, the department has strengths in several geographically-defined areas including Asia, Africa and Latin America, the British Imperial and Transatlantic worlds, as well as the following thematic fields:

- Childhood and Youth
- Cultural History
- Economic History
- Environmental History
- Gender, Sexuality, and Women
- Global and Transnational History
- Historiography
- Imperial, Colonial, and Postcolonial
- Indigenous History
- Intellectual History
- Legal History
- Migration and Diasporas
- Politics and the State
- Public Policy
- Race
- Religion
- Science, Medicine, and Technology
- Social History
- War and Conflict

We encourage you to identify an area of research interest and contact a potential supervisor before applying.

Visit the History Department website to read faculty profiles and learn more about faculty members’ research areas. When you find a faculty member with similar research interests to yours, contact him/her and tell them about your interest in graduate work and related experience.
• Consider volunteering with different local community organizations, such as the Association of Museums, and cultural studies groups, such as the Horizons and the history department.

• Explore how you can connect with your community through activities such as graduate student outreach programs, organizing conferences, and research groups.

• Prepare for work or studies in a multi-cultural environment by taking the Intercultural Awareness Training Certificate hosted by QUIC and the Kingston Museum of Healthcare.

• Consider volunteering with different local community organizations, such as Martha’s Table, or Loving Spoonful.

• Practice articulating the skills you have been developing in settings outside the university, such as casual conversation, networking, and interviews. Get help from a Career Services workshop.

• Investigate internships from MITACS and other sources.

• Check out opportunities for extra training through CTL, Expanding Horizons, MITACS, or other sources to boost your skills.

• Do some targeted networking with people working in careers of interest through Queen’s Connects on LinkedIn, the Queen’s Alumni Association, professional associations, and at conferences. Get help from a Career Services workshop.

• Consider joining professional associations like the Heritage Canada Association and the Canadian Historical Association (CHA).

• If you will be continuing graduate studies, apply for SSHRC and OGS funding.

• If you are considering a PhD, explore programs of interest reach out to faculty, and apply to PhD programs and external scholarships.

• Participate in hiring committees and attend job talks. Start focusing on areas of interest. Research organizations of interest and start putting together your CV or resume for potential positions of interest. Get help from Career Services with job searching, resumes, and interviews.

• Participate in the Graduate History Student Association, or meeting with a career counsellor. Check out books like The Academic Job Search for more ideas.

• Consider how your course papers can contribute to your MA cognate essay or thesis.

• For help with teaching, get support from the Centre for Teaching and Learning. Enroll in SGS902 or the PUL Certificate for more professional development in teaching and learning.

• Use a Research Assistant or Teaching Assistant position to develop your research or teaching skills.

• Start keeping an ePortfolio of your skills, experiences and competencies.

• Keep an active presence on social media such as Twitter or LinkedIn to connect with Queen’s alumni. Check out non-academic labour market websites. Stay informed about what’s new in your field of interest.

• Complete your MA cognate essay or thesis.

• Consider publication options for your research. Attend a major conference in your field, such as the Canadian Historical Association (CHA).

• Set up a meeting with the School of Graduate Studies for a Grad Chat to discuss your research interests.

• Consider putting an article in The Conversation.

• Attend a professional development workshop from Expanding Horizons.

• Complete your coursework; begin to research and write your cognate essay or thesis.

• Attend or present at a graduate conference such as McGill-Queens. Participate in the 3 Minute Thesis (3MT) competition.

• Expand your research audience through social media such as Twitter or a blog.

A graduate degree in History can equip you with valuable and versatile skills, such as:

• Project management: develop ideas, gather information, analyze, critically appraise findings, draw and act on conclusions

• Knowledge and technical skills

• Effective communication skills in multiple forms such as writing, editing, and presenting for diverse audiences

• Information management: prioritize, organize, and synthesize large amounts of information

• Time management: meet deadlines and manage responsibilities despite competing demands

• Creativity and innovation

• Perseverance

• Independence and experience as a collaborative worker

• Awareness, an understanding of sound ethical practices, social responsibility, responsible research and cultural sensitivity

• Professionalism in all aspects of work, research, and interactions

• Leadership: initiative and vision leading people and discussion

WHERE CAN I GO?
A Master’s degree in History can take your career in many directions. Many of our MA students choose to continue their academic inquiry with a PhD. Our Master’s students are equipped with a strong foundation for careers in:

• Law

• Government

• Social Policy Research

• Museums and Public History

• Documentary Filmmaking

• Military

• Journalism

• Education

• Public Service

Taking time to explore career options, build experience, and network can help you have a smooth transition to the world of work after graduation.

Visit careers.queensu.ca/gradmaps for the online version with links!

* This map is intended to provide suggestions for activities and careers, but everyone’s abilities, experiences, and constraints are different. Build your own Grad Map using our online My Grad Map tool.
Application FAQs

What do I need to know to APPLY?

ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS
- Minimum second-class standing in final two years of an Honours BA program in History from a recognized university (76-79%, 3.3/4.3 GPA).

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS
- Writing sample and two page proposal.
- If English is not a native language, prospective students must meet the English language proficiency requirements in writing, speaking, reading, and listening.

KEY DATES & DEADLINES
- Application due: Third week of January.

Before you start your application, please review the Graduate studies application process.

What about FUNDING?

The Department of History at Queen's provides funding for all MA students. Students receive financial support from a variety of sources including Queen's Graduate and Academic Excellence Awards, external awards, and Teaching Assistantships.

Apply for external funding from OGS, SSHRC and other sources. Queen's will automatically issue a one time $5,000 award to incoming Masters students who have won federal government tri-council awards. For more information, see the School of Graduate Studies' information on awards and scholarships and the Department of History's External Awards information page.

Where can I get help?

Queen's provides you with a broad range of support services from your first point of contact with the university through to graduation. Ranging from help with academics and careers, to physical, emotional, or spiritual resources – our welcoming environment offers the programs and services you need to be successful, both academically and personally. Check out the SGS website for available resources.

What is the community like?

At Queen's, graduate students from all disciplines learn and discover in a close-knit intellectual community. You will find friends, peers and support among the graduate students enrolled in Queen's more than 130 graduate programs within 50+ departments & research centres. With the world's best scholars, prize-winning professional development opportunities, excellent funding packages and life in the affordable, historic waterfront city of Kingston, Queen's offers a wonderful environment for graduate studies. Queen's is an integral part of the Kingston community, with the campus nestled in the core of the city, only a 10-minute walk to downtown with its shopping, dining and waterfront. For more about Kingston's history and culture, see Queen's University's Discover Kingston page.

---

MA Career Outcomes in the Humanities

- Government, Nonprofit, Community, Public Service: 24%
- Faculty, Teaching, Research: 33%
- Business, Corporate: 43%