GRAD MAP FOR MSc STUDENTS

Why GRADUATE STUDIES in AGING AND HEALTH?

Graduate studies in Aging and Health are offered through innovative programs that provide participants with a comprehensive understanding of aging, with a focus on health and healthy living. Students will develop multi-disciplinary knowledge of individual aging processes, the effect of aging on social systems, and the policies needed to support healthy aging. The program is meant to enhance students' ability to contribute to the development, delivery and implementation of evidence-based care, services, and policies for older adults across a range of settings.

Why QUEEN'S?

The program is full-time and is completed from a distance, through a blended format of on-line and in-person learning. Intensive on-site sessions introduce students to core MSc courses and e-learning technology, as well as provide an opportunity for in-person interaction with faculty and fellow class members. Elective courses are completed at a distance, online. The blended format of on-site intensives and on-line components couples networking and experiential opportunities with the flexibility of distance learning.

Queen's University programs in Aging and Health position graduates for success in a variety of settings that serve the growing

"I wanted to equip myself with transitional knowledge that allows me to successfully advocate for the lives of older adults, without having to move to campus and quit my job.... This program is designed for the lifelong learner, delivering rich education on a profoundly relevant topic, in a flexible format."

– Stephanie Gurr, MSc'19

population of older adults including government, universities and colleges, for-profit and non-profit organizations, business and industry, and various healthcare settings.

Program STRUCTURE

MSc: Students entering the MSc program will progress on a full-time basis to complete requirements in 12 months. Students will complete a total of three required (core) courses (9 credits), four electives (12 credits), and a project.

GDip: Students entering the GDip program will progress on a full-time basis to complete requirements in 8 months. Students will complete a total of five courses (15 credits), any 800 level elective course, including most MSc core courses.

Core MSc COURSES

- Evaluating Aging-Related Programs and Services
- Ethics and Aging
- Issues in Aging and Health

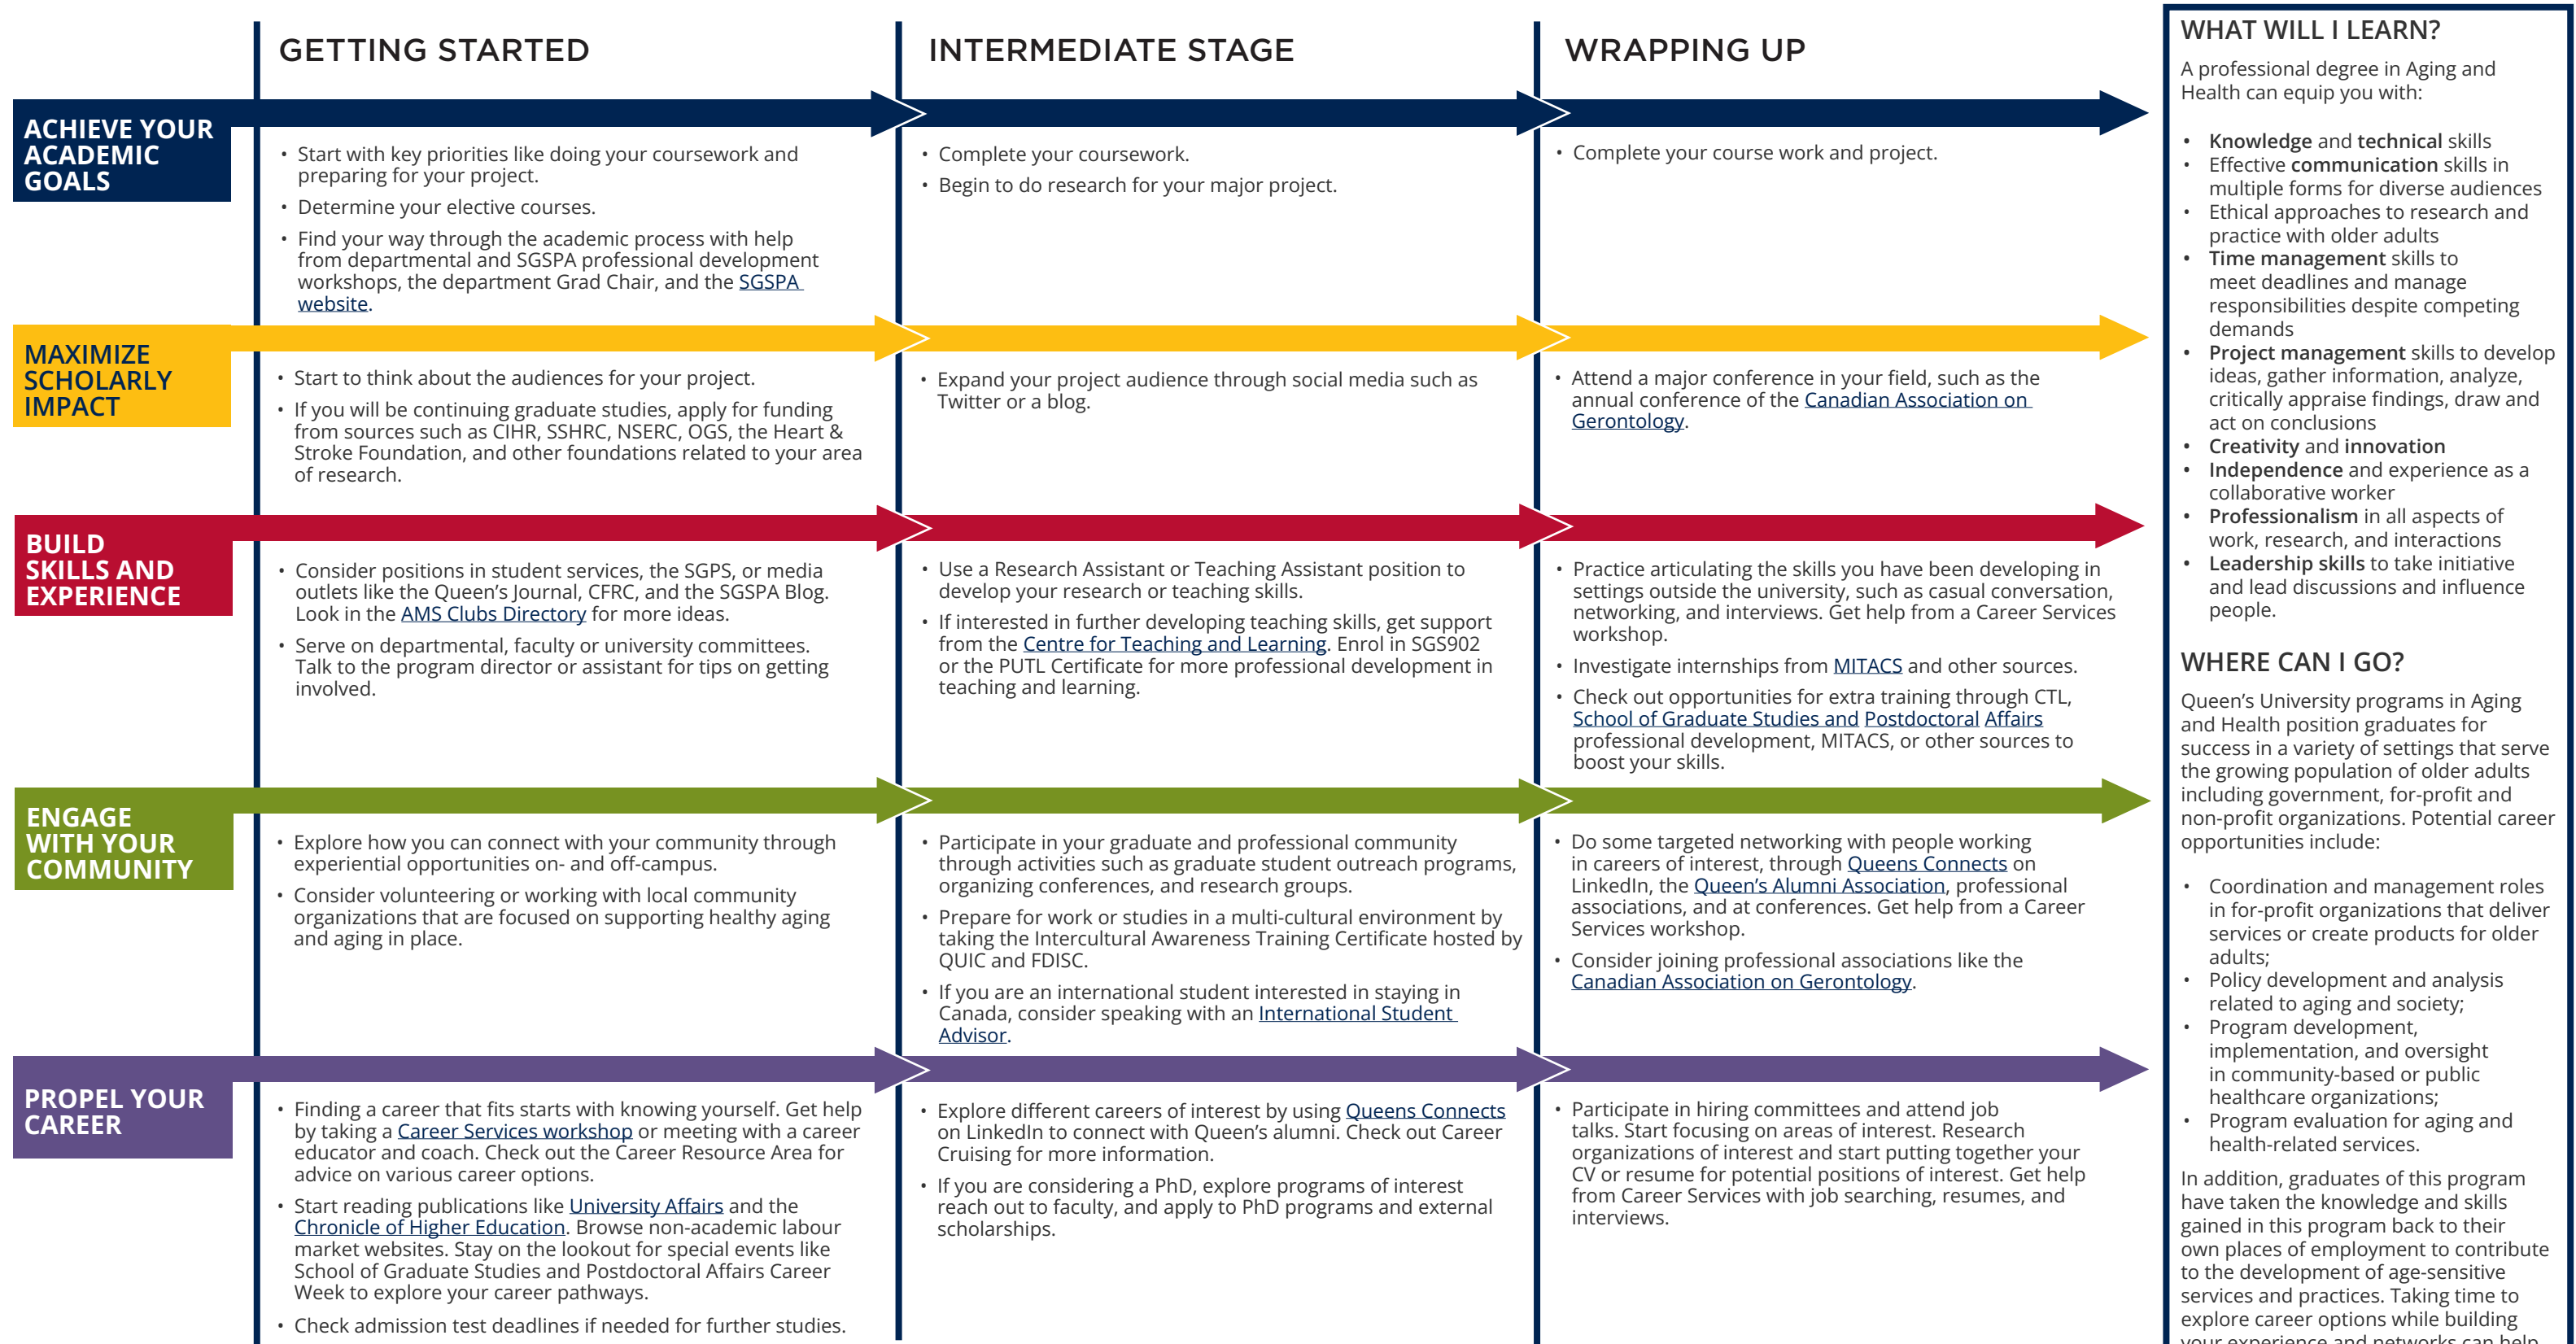

Students in the MSc program will complete a project that develops skills for critical appraisal and integration of evidence to address a defined question related to aging and health. Students in the GDip program can complete the Core MSc Courses as one of their five term courses. Students in the GDip program do not complete a project.
