Why GRADUATE STUDIES in SOCIOLOGY?

The MA program in Sociology at Queen's provides advanced training for students seeking to critically examine the social world at every level, and to engage with the formation of pathways towards social change. Students are well supported to develop their theoretical knowledge and methodological skills through a combination of well-designed courses and research opportunities under expert supervision. The department is particularly well known for its strengths in criminology and the law; media, information, and surveillance; power, inequalities, and social justice.

The MA program equips students with the essential research skills in analytic thinking and data analysis, alongside communication and presentational competencies that are highly valuable for a range of careers. Our graduates often pursue doctoral research throughout Canada and beyond, or establish careers in law, media, education, development, marketing, social work, corrections, policy analysis and research. Graduates of the MA program remark on the intimate, supportive, and cohesive culture of the department, with small classes and close supervision.

Why QUEEN'S?

Our faculty are recognized as academic leaders in their fields, conducting a wide range of funded research programs that enhance the classroom experience and provide opportunities for collaborative research and training. In addition to the benefits of a small department where students receive close supervision and support from faculty and staff, Sociology at Queen's offers an annual graduate student conference where MA students can develop their organizational skills and present their research within a collegial and collaborative environment with faculty and other graduate students.

The Surveillance Studies Centre is a multi-disciplinary international research centre affiliated with the department. It offers several speakers series, research seminars and workshops that facilitate collaboration between faculty and students across departments and faculties. Its current research programs focus on the social, political and ethical implications of big data surveillance, 'smart' cities, wearable technologies and drones.

Our students also have unique opportunities to engage with local institutions, communities and services. Because of the significance that Kingston holds in the federal penal system, there are many local associations concerned with prison transitions and reform. Some of our graduate's work with the Elizabeth Frye Society, while others work within local prisons, or with local shelters for women. More broadly, graduate students at Queen's gain the benefits of a close-knit intellectual community, competitive funding packages, and a lively city full of stimulating events, experiences and opportunities.

"Choosing the MA program in the Department of Sociology at Queen's was a great decision. Faculty and staff make an exceptional effort to foster a sense of community both inside and outside the classroom, as well as support students individually in their coursework and research."

– Joe Stieb, MA Candidate

What about FUNDING?

All eligible full-time graduate students who request funding (financial support) as part of their initial application can expect to receive a funding offer to help them with the costs associated with their graduate studies in the Department of Sociology.

The minimum guaranteed funding package for MA students is $16,000 per year for two years. It is important to note that they are encouraged to apply for all major external and internal (where appropriate) scholarships for which they are eligible.

Funding packages may consist of any or a combination of the following: scholarships, fellowships, external awards, internal awards, teaching assistantships or research assistantships. The Department also offers funding for participation in conferences.

Apply for external funding from OGS, SSHRC/NSERC and other sources. Queen's will automatically issue a one time $5,000 award to incoming Masters students who have won federal government tri-council awards. For more information, see the School of Graduate Studies' information on awards and scholarships and the Department of Sociology funding information.
