

Linguistics

There are three aspects to Linguistics: language form, language meaning, and language in context. Linguistics is a scientific study of a language that explores the structure of language and how it is acquired. Linguistics students explore how a language is structured, how it is used in the production, comprehension of messages, and how language changes over time. You will try to answer questions relating to the nature of language, such as what do all languages have in common, or how do children learn a language? Linguistics is a highly interdisciplinary study with connections to many disciplines.

TOP 5 REASONS to study LINGUISTICS

- 1 Knowledge of the nature of language and communication is increasingly important in the job market.
- 2 Linguistics is a highly interdisciplinary study with connections to Philosophy, Psychology, and Health Studies.
- 3 Interact closely with professors in class and during many events held throughout the year.
- 4 Students will gain strong analytical and abstract thinking skills, appreciated in a wide range of careers.
- 5 Linguistic training is valuable for studying and learning languages.

Alumni Story

"It was easy to get to know my professors and take on responsibilities that might fall to grad students elsewhere."

Why study in Kingston?

For 175 years, our community has been more than a collection of bright minds – Queen's has attracted students with an ambitious spirit. Queen's has the highest retention rates, the highest graduation rates, and one of the highest employment rates among recent graduates. We are a research intensive university focused on the undergraduate experience. The BBC has identified Kingston as one of the GREATEST UNIVERSITY TOWNS in the world – and it is often awarded the safest city in Canada. It is a university city at the core; just a quick drive to Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa and even New York. A university with more clubs per capita than any other university in Canada, and a city with more restaurants per capita than any other city in North America – you will have the experience of a lifetime at Queen's – and graduate with a degree that is globally recognized among the best.

We're closer than you think.
