Why a MASTER OF EDUCATION IN WORLD INDIGENOUS STUDIES IN EDUCATION?

WISE is a part-time blended (online and on-campus) program intended for students with experience in Indigenous communities.

It is designed to develop in its graduates leadership abilities and theoretical, practical, and experiential knowledge, and to increase research and development capabilities in education, in the community, and its leaders.

Program STRUCTURE

- Part-time study only (the first July is normally face-to-face and the balance is online).
- 2 degree patterns: 6 half-courses + thesis or 8 half-courses + project.
- Each course consists of 36 instructional hours.
- Students are assigned and interact regularly with an academic program advisor.
- There are traditional opening and closing ceremonies in July as well as other activities, such as sharing circles, visiting speakers, and other events through the Queen's Four Directions Indigenous Student Centre.
- Program staff are available to assist you.
- Students can expect to complete within 36 to 48 months of part-time study.
- Degree requirements must be completed within 5 years of initial registration.
- Students have access to our Elder-in-Residence who is available to support Indigenous students.

Required COURSES

All students are required to take this course on campus:

- EDUC-872 - Educational Research in Aboriginal and Indigenous Contexts

An introduction to educational inquiry that focuses on the principal Western approaches and on the design and implementation of research appropriate for Indigenous contexts. Topics may include oral traditions, narrative research, archival research, Indigenous epistemologies, decolonization of research methodology, and ethical concerns about intellectual property. The course provides initial preparation for thesis and project work and introduces students to the tools and conventions of educational inquiry: for example, library searches, use of primary and secondary sources, ethical review considerations, writing graduate assignments.

Students choosing a thesis must complete this course:

- EDUC-875 - Qualitative Inquiry: Orality in Aboriginal and Indigenous Thought

Prepares students to undertake research using qualitative approaches appropriate to Aboriginal and Indigenous contexts, such as narrative studies based in oral traditions, and their impact on Aboriginal thought, participant observation, and ethnography.

Brief descriptions of the courses offered in the WISE program can be found in the School of Graduate Studies calendar.
Application FAQs

What do I need to know to APPLY?

ACADEMIC REQUIREMENTS

- Professional experience in Aboriginal and/or world Indigenous education or a related field, a B.Ed. degree or its equivalent, and a minimum of a B- (70 - 72.9%) average in a Bachelor's degree or its equivalent; OR
- Two years of professional experience in Aboriginal and/or world Indigenous education or a related field, and a minimum of a B- (70 - 72.9%) average in a Bachelor’s Honours degree or its equivalent; OR
- A B.Ed. degree and a background in Aboriginal and/or world Indigenous issues, and a minimum of a mid-B (73 - 76.9%) average in a Bachelor’s degree or its equivalent; OR
- Demonstrated significant professional experience in Aboriginal and/or indigenous education or related field, and a minimum of a mid-B average in a Bachelor’s degree or its equivalent.

In addition to the above academic requirements, an applicant must submit two letters of support from respected members of the applicant’s Aboriginal or world Indigenous community to which they either belong or are related. Please note that these references do not replace the requirement for applicants to provide two academic references as part of their application package (4 references in total).

Since preference will be given to qualified applicants of Aboriginal ancestry (Status, non-Status, Métis, Inuit) applicants may be requested to provide proof of Aboriginal ancestry where applicable. Documentation which provides proof of Aboriginal ancestry may include: a status card, church records, a Métis card, a verification letter from an official Political Territorial Organization (PTO) or First Nations.

Applicants whose native languages do not include English must obtain a passing score in one of the accepted tests of English language proficiency. Information can be found in the General Regulations of the School of Graduate Studies here: International Students.

KEY DATES & DEADLINES

- Applicants may submit their applications and all supporting documentation for July admission between mid-September and March 1.