SMP SUMMER MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

Students at Queens University should be advised that sign-up sheets circulated during the first week of class and promoted through on campus booths, outlining "Summer Management Opportunities" with average earnings of $15,000 are in fact positions being offered to Queens students for the summer of 2019. The Summer Management Program is a company committed to offering students with entrepreneurial spirit the opportunity to be placed in charge of their own small business for a summer where they can learn and develop transferable management skills such as project management, human resources, marketing, sales and client management.

Unfortunately, some of these sign-up sheets were distributed during class without formal consent from the University. The Summer Management Program has put a strict policy in place with its student representatives to ensure sign-up sheets would no longer be circulated in classrooms. We are committed to complete transparency while working with Queens University Career Services to follow all guidelines for organizations on campus.

If you have filled out one of the sign-up sheets, you will be receiving a phone call to attend an information session regarding how you could apply to the Summer Management Program and the requirements of the program. The caller will clearly identify themselves as calling from the Summer Management Program and if a student does not wish to attend an information session, simply indicating this will have them removed from the list.

These information sessions will be held at Kingston Hall by Queens University students currently enrolled in our program. For more information on the Summer Management Program, please visit our website at www.summermanagementprogram.ca or attend an information session.
